Mr. Denzak is a Partner at SWABACK and is involved in a wide variety of projects focused on all aspects of the built environment, including community master planning, urban infill, town center revitalization, and the design of specialty buildings. His work encompasses all stages of the development process, from initial feasibility through the final execution of vertical construction.

Mr. Denzak holds a Master's degree from Harvard University's Graduate School of Design, where he focused his studies on urban planning and community design initiatives. Prior to joining SWABACK, Mr. Denzak worked for several distinguished international design firms, including The Architects Collaborative (TAC) and Hellmuth, Obata + Kassabaum (HOK).

Mr. Denzak was previously co-chairman of ULI Arizona's Smart Growth Committee and is a current member of ULI's Community Development Council. He has lectured at several ULI conferences on a range of master planning-related topics. He resides in Cave Creek, Arizona, with his wife and three children.
